

Women Builders Council, WeForShe: Time to Empower the Next Generation

05.16.2018

The time is now for the construction industry to challenge to status quo. Change is happening at a rapid pace and mindsets are shifting, leading to more inclusive opportunities for all. It starts with you.

You are invited to an evening that brings together leaders from the private and public sectors, academia and the next generation of talent. Let's celebrate this moment and keep pressing for progress.

From the largest corporations, to small businesses and individuals, Women Builders Council (WBC) is inspiring New Yorkers to become change agents for the achievement of equality for all. Building upon the United Nation's ground breaking "HeForShe" campaign, WBC is partnering with key construction industry decision makers to affirm their commitment to gender equality, as well as increasing diversity and the role of women in the construction industry.

Formed in 2017 by Women Builders Council and the United Nations, WeForShe unites men and women throughout the construction industry to create a more inclusive workplace. Women Builders Council provides a dynamic forum that advances industry knowledge, addresses the barriers that prevent women from growing, and facilitates solutions for policy makers and industry leaders.
