

Digital Litigators: Tips and Tricks to Practicing in e-Courtrooms, 2016 Annual Meeting of ABA Forum on the Construction Industry”

Litigation today requires not only an attorney to be savvy with evidentiary and court rules, but also with technology. Technology has reconfigured modern practice—online legal research has all but displaced books, documents are reviewed in .TIF images more often than paper, and emails have supplanted letters as the primary mode of written communication. Courts are catching up, and the way litigators try cases continues to evolve with the technology as more courtrooms become digital.

Alana T. Sliwinski discusses tips and tricks to practicing in e-Courtrooms in the PDF below.
